

Azadi Kenya's Theory of Change

Our Mission

To enable and nurture safe spaces and communities for survivors of human trafficking to heal, thrive, and claim agency.

Our Values

We are Survivor-Centred

We Prioritise Rest

We Hold an Intersectional Perspective

We Believe in Building Solidarity and Communities

We are Trauma-Informed

Our Vehicle

The Resource Centre

The Resource Centre is a physical and virtual space where a survivor can learn skills, be part of a tight-knit community of survivors, and nurture them in their path toward success and well-being.

Our Approach

Safeguarding and Well-being

Economic Justice and Self-Determination

Survivor Leadership and Advocacy

Knowledge Production and Sharing

Mental Health Support and Training

Community Building

Gainful Employment

Entrepreneurship

Education

Developing the capacity of survivor leaders

Community outreach

Movement building and advocacy

Research

Develop and share learnings

The Outcome

Survivors find a sense of belonging in a community of peers and in the wider society. They have the space to heal, gather, and thrive both as an individual and as part of a community.

Survivors engage in the workplace to become self-sufficient and gain capital to challenge power structures and catalyse positive social change for themselves and their community.

Survivors will have the capacity to become leaders and participate in claiming their rights and those of their community in both the anti-trafficking and the wider human rights sector.

Survivor leaders generate knowledge, that knowledge is recognised, and shared widely to inform interventions, influence change, and move the anti-trafficking sector to be survivor-centred.

Survivors of human trafficking are integrated, thriving members of society.